

Instructions for Authors

Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics

Submission of Manuscripts

All submissions should be sent to <editors@ejpe.org>. Once you send us a contribution, one of the journal editors will be assigned to your paper and all further communication concerning it. You will receive an acknowledgement of your submission and you will be notified within a few weeks as to whether your paper has been passed on for peer review.

Types of Contributions

Academic articles (4000-8000 words, including a 150 word abstract and references. Longer pieces may be accepted if exceptional): submissions will be original manuscripts on any of the research domains covered by the Journal. Please see below for specific requirements for Organization and Style.

Book reviews (1000-2000 words): submissions should be untitled except for complete bibliographical details of the work reviewed. Unsolicited book reviews will only be considered if the book falls clearly within the Journal's research domains and has been recently published (in the preceding 12-18 months). Book review essays, for example a thematic analysis of several books, will be considered as articles.

PhD thesis summaries (500-1000 words): authors must have completed formal PhD graduation within the preceding 12 months with a thesis that clearly falls within the research interests of the Journal. Submissions should include the complete name of the author, full title of the thesis, (language of the thesis, if not English), official name of the University and academic department, date of thesis defence, and names and affiliations of thesis supervisors.

Guidelines on Organization and Style

Manuscripts accepted for publication must conform to the EJPE style, which is based on the Chicago Manual of Style, 15 ed. rev. (University of Chicago Press, 2003). Contributions need not be in this style when submitted, but after a text is accepted for publication the author is expected to make the appropriate changes.

Failure to follow these guidelines may result in the eventual rejection of your manuscript.

- Manuscripts should be written in English (in any consistent spelling convention), and in Microsoft Word format, 1.5 spaced, 12 point font.
- For all types of contribution, use the unjustified mode and leave the right margin ragged in the text. Avoid the use of page-breaks or section-breaks in the document.
- Articles should include an abstract up to 150 words, and a list of up to 6 keywords suitable for on-line searching purposes.
- Jargon, acronyms, and abbreviations should be used only after identifying the complete name once, and preferably kept to a minimum.
- Use a single (not double) space after a full point.
- For all submissions, please supply a brief biographical note about each author (as a separate document for articles): including name, current position, main research interests, and contact email address (and if applicable, recent publications and personal webpage address).
- (Brief) acknowledgements should be added as a footnote on the first page.
- Authors of articles are requested to avoid any obvious self-reference within the text, footnotes, and document properties in the initial submission, to support the blind review process.

References, Quotations, and Footnotes

- Citations should appear within the main text as (author year, page number), e.g. (Schelling 1978, 59).
- Citations of works by two authors should include both names separated by “and”, then the year, e.g. (Morgan and Morrison 1999). Use “et al.” after the first name when there are three or more authors, e.g. (Heap, et al. 1992).
- Short quotations of less than four lines should be in double quotation marks, and followed by a bracketed reference, for example: “The two dogmas are, indeed, at root identical” (Quine 1953, 41).
- Extended quotations of four lines or more should be indented, single spaced, without quotation marks, and separated from the rest of the text by an additional line.
- Conventions such as “ibid” or “op. cit.” should not be used.
- Substantive footnotes should be denoted by Arabic numbers and included at the bottom of the page.
- Footnotes should not be used for citations and should not be excessive.

- Articles and Book Reviews should include a complete Bibliography at the end of the document, detailing every work actually cited in the text in the style illustrated below. Note: Do not use “et al.” in the Bibliography: spell out each author’s name, including first name if known.

Books

Hanfling, Oswald. 2000. Philosophy and ordinary language: the bent and genius of our tongue. London: Routledge.

Publication date should appear, without parentheses, following the author. Book titles should be in italics.

Smith, Adam. 1981 [1776]. An inquiry into the nature and causes of the wealth of nations. Indianapolis: Liberty Fund.

Reprinted books should include the year of reprint and the original year of publication in [brackets]

Articles

Walsh, Vivian. 2003. Sen after Putnam. Review of Political Economy, 12 (1): 5-25.

Article titles should appear without quotation marks. 12 is the volume and (1) is the issue number. Complete page numbers for the article should follow the colon without “pp”.

Book Chapters

Blaug, Mark. 2002. Ugly currents in modern economics. In Fact and fiction in economics, ed. Uskali Mäki. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 35-56.

Be sure to include the page numbers for the entire chapter.

Working Papers

Krugman, Paul, and Robert Lawrence. 1993. Trade, Jobs, and Wages. NBER Working Paper No. 4478. National Bureau of Economic Research, Cambridge, MA.

For working papers the city and state follow rather than precede the publisher.

Websites

Fonseca, Gonçalo L. 2000. General equilibrium under uncertainty. The History of Economic Thought Website.

<http://cepa.newschool.edu/het/essays/sequence/seqhome.htm> (accessed June 17, 2008).

Other Notes

- Authors must have permission to publish any materials for which they do not own the copyright.
- At the proof stage, authors can only make typographical changes to the manuscript.
- Authors are responsible for correct spelling, grammar, and other aspects of style that may affect the clarity and accessibility of the text. However, the editors may actively edit for these if necessary.

The Editors

editors@ejpe.org

Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics

<http://ejpe.org>