

Instructions for Authors

Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics

Submission of Manuscripts

All submissions should be sent to <editors@ejpe.org>. Once you send us a contribution, one of the journal editors will be assigned to your paper and all further communication concerning to it. You will receive an acknowledgement of your submission and you will be notified within a few weeks as to whether your paper has been passed on for the peer review process.

Types of Contributions

Academic articles (4000-8000 words, including a 150 word abstract and references. Longer pieces may be accepted if exceptional): submissions should be original manuscripts on any of the research domains covered by the Journal. Please see below for specific details on Organization and Style.

Book reviews (750-2000 words): including complete bibliographical details of the work to be review: full names of author, year of publication, full title and subtitle, place of publication, publishing house, and total number of pages of the book. Additionally: the author of the review should submit his name, and current academic position.

PhD thesis summaries (500-1000 words): including complete name of the author, title of the thesis, official name of the University, Faculty or Academic Department, date of thesis defence, names and affiliations of thesis supervisors. OPTIONAL: Further personal details such as current position, research interests, and website.

Guidelines on Organization and Style

Manuscripts accepted for publication must conform to the EJPE style, which is based on the Chicago Manual of Style, 15 ed. rev. (University of Chicago Press, 2003). Contributions do not have to be in that style when submitted, but after a text is accepted for publication, the author is expected to make the appropriate changes. Failure to follow these guidelines may result in the final return of your manuscript.

- Manuscripts should be written in English (in any consistent spelling convention), and in Microsoft Word format, 1.5 spaced, 12 point font.
- For all types of contribution, use unjustified mode and leave the right margin ragged in the text. Avoid the use of page-breaks or section-breaks in the document.
- Articles should include an abstract up to 150 words, and a list of up to 6 keywords suitable for on-line searching purposes.
- Jargon, acronyms, and abbreviations should be used only after identifying the complete name once, and preferably kept to a minimum.
- Use a single (not double) space after a full point.
- Indicate by underlining any word or words you wish to appear in italics, and avoid extensive use of italics for emphasis in the text.
- Please supply a brief biographical note about each author, on a final separate sheet, including: name, current position, main research interests, and contact email address.
- Acknowledgements should be added as a paragraph at the end of the document, after the biographical note (not as a footnote in the first page).
- Authors of articles are requested to avoid any obvious self-reference within the text and footnotes in the initial submission, to support the blind review process.

References, Quotations, and Footnotes

- Citations should appear within the text as (author year, page number), e.g. (Schelling 1978, 59) and included in the main text.
- Citations of works by two authors should include both names separated by “and”, then the year, e.g. (Morgan and Morrison 1999). Use “et al.” after the first name when there are three or more authors, e.g. (Heap, et al. 1992).
- Short quotations of less than four lines should be in double quotation marks, and followed by a bracketed reference including (author year, page number), e.g. (Quine 1953, 42).
- Extended quotations of four lines or more should be indented, single spaced, without quotation marks, and separated from the rest of the text by an additional line.
- Conventions such as “ibid” or “op. cit.” should not be used.
- Substantive footnotes should be included at the bottom of the page denoted by Arabic numbers.
- Footnotes should not be used for citations and should not be excessive.

- Articles and Book Reviews should include a complete Bibliography at the end of the document, detailing every work actually cited in the text: follow the style illustrated below. Note: Do not use “et al.” in the Bibliography: spell out each author’s name, including first name if known.

Books

Hanfling, Oswald. 2000. Philosophy and ordinary language: the bent and genius of our tongue. London: Routledge.

Publication date should appear, without parentheses, following the author. Book titles should be in italics.

Smith, Adam. 1981 [1776]. An inquiry into the nature and causes of the wealth of nations. Indianapolis: Liberty Fund.

Reprinted books should include the year of reprint and the original year of publication in [brackets]

Articles

Walsh, Vivian. 2003. Sen after Putnam. Review of Political Economy, 12 (1): 5-25.

Article titles should appear without quotation marks. 12 is the volume and (1) is the Number. Complete page numbers for the article should follow the colon without “pp”.

Book Chapters

Blaug, Mark. 2002. Ugly currents in modern economics. In Fact and fiction in economics, ed. Uskali Mäki. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 35-56.

Be sure to include the page numbers for the entire chapter.

Working Papers

Krugman, Paul, and Robert Lawrence. 1993. Trade, Jobs, and Wages. NBER Working Paper No. 4478. National Bureau of Economic Research, Cambridge, MA.

For working papers the city and state follow rather than precede the publisher.

Websites

Fonseca, Gonçalo L. 2000. General equilibrium under uncertainty. The History of Economic Thought Website.

<http://cepa.newschool.edu/het/essays/sequence/seqhome.htm> (accessed June 17, 2008).

Other Notes

- Authors must have permission to publish any materials for which they do not own the copyright.
- At the proof stage, authors can only make typographical changes to the manuscript.
- Authors are responsible for correct spelling, grammar, and other aspects of style that may affect the clarity and accessibility of the text. However, the editors may actively edit for these if necessary.

The Editors

editors@ejpe.org

Erasmus Journal for Philosophy and Economics

<http://ejpe.org>